

TALK OF WAR

Between Russia and Japan Again Breaks Out

Seizure of Korean Peninsula May be Czar's Next Move --Russian Soldiers Massed on the Border--Efforts to Check Bear by Peace Treaty are in Vain.

London, Oct. 22.—War seems to be nearer Russia and Japan than it has been for two or three weeks. From Tokyo comes the report that Russia continues to concentrate troops along the Korean border, despite Japanese protests, and the idea at the Japanese capital is firmly fixed that Russia is preparing to seize the Korean Peninsula either now or in the near future. It is to get satisfactory assurances on this point that the efforts of the Mikado's Government have been directed. As yet these efforts have been unavailing.

A Yokohama dispatch says the Ministerial conferences, naval preparation, and notably the appointment of Admiral Togo, known as a "fighting admiral," to command the standing squadron, have led to a renewal of the anticipations of trouble. Some decided development in the crisis is expected shortly. The steamship and railroad companies are reported to have been notified to be in readiness for emergencies.

A significant development within the past few days is the criticism which is appearing in the Russian press on American pretensions to trade privileges in Manchuria, and the intimation is plainly made that the two new open ports in Manchuria arranged for by treaty with China will not be granted by Russia, who controls them.

When the strict censorship exercised over newspapers in Russia is considered the significance of these newspaper utterances can be seen. It is the general impression that they are put out at the instance of the Russian Government as a feeler to test public opinion in the United States and to find out just how far it will be safe to go with the big republic.

With Japan at her throat it is not believed that Russia will really take action which might result in stirring Uncle Sam up to the fighting pitch, for since the Spanish War the fighting power of the United States, both at sea and on land, as exemplified in China and the Philippines, is held in high respect. Nevertheless, this phase of the question is being watched with keen interest by British statesmen.

men. Nothing would delight Great Britain and Japan more than to have the United States compelled to take action against Russia in order to protect her interests.

WEAKEST POINT

In Japan's Army is Cavalry—Has a Fine Infantry.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 22.—A synopsis of the situation in the Japanese Army shows that its weakest point is the cavalry, the development of which has been precluded by the lack of horses and suitable places for exercise. The Russian cavalry is seven times more numerous. The Japanese infantry is most favorably criticised. Its moral qualities are said to be very high, although its physical qualities are on a much lower level. In warm countries, it is declared, the Japanese infantryman has displayed extraordinary powers of endurance, but he would hardly be likely to show them in a cold climate.

CLAIMS LITTLE DANGER OF WAR.
Berlin, Oct. 22.—The foreign office states that it has received reassuring messages from the far east and that there is now little danger of a clash between Russia and Japan.

WIDOW, 48, SUES

WIDOWER OF 89

Watkins, N. Y., Oct. 22.—Mrs. Emily Warden of Monterey, has brought a supreme court action against Dr. Robt. Bell, of the same place, in which she claims $25,000 damages for breach of promise.

The plaintiff alleges that Dr. Bell called at her home three weeks after the death of his wife and entered into a contract of marriage with her. Subsequently he took her driving, wrote her letters, visited her frequently and since the Spanish War the fighting power of the United States, both at sea and on land, as exemplified in China and the Philippines, is held in high respect. Nevertheless, this phase of the question is being watched with keen interest by British statesmen.

TWO ROPES FOUND

At Home of the Grays at Centerburg, With Nooses in Their Ends, for Use in Committing Suicide--Women Have Left.

Word has been received here from Centerburg that Miss Belle Gray, the young woman who attempted to commit suicide at her home in that place on Friday night by jumping into a cistern, and her mother have left that place and in the future will reside with relatives. The mother will make her home with her brother, Mr. William Harbottle, a farmer living near Marango, Morrow county, and the daughter will reside with an uncle, Dr. Robt. Gray at St. Clair, Michigan.

There was a rumor at the time Miss Gray had made the attempt on her life that she and her mother had entered into a compact whereby both were to commit suicide, but this could not be verified until Tuesday.

When interested citizens were looking into the affairs in the Gray household, they found two ropes each with a noose at the end. Miss Gray attempted to burn the ropes without them being seen, but failed.

It now also develops that last summer they tried to starve themselves to death.

Their cases are peculiar ones. They were by no means in impecunious circumstances. Mrs. Gray owns a good brick residence on South Hartford street. She draws a pension of $12 a month and had a comfortable bank account.

The mother was of a worrying disposition and in her nervous state worked her daughter into a condition of frenzy, by constantly telling her that upon her death the pension would be cut off, leaving the daughter without an income.

It is the opinion that now that the mother and daughter have been separated, neither will be under the morbid influence of the other, and each having a good home amid different scenes that they will not be fretting, and that the thought of suicide will be dismissed from their minds.

There is a great deal of sympathy among the people for the two women.

HEAD OF PARADE IN NEW YORK, AWAITING CONCLUSION OF THE RESTORER'S EXHORTATIONS.

GUARDIANSHIP

Of Moses Fowler Chase Settled by the Chicago Federal Court After Long Legal Controversy.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—By affirming a decision of the Federal court of Indiana the United States Circuit Court of Appeal Wednesday declared Frederick S. Chase of Lafayette, Ind., to be the legal guardian of the person and property of his son, Moses Fowler Chase, said to be worth nearly $1,000,000. By this ruling of the higher court George Hoadley, Jr., was loser, and the aunt of young Chase, Mrs. Ophelia Duhme, on whose petition he was appointed guardian in Cincinnati, failed again to secure control of the young man and his valuable estate. While on appeal to the United States Supreme court is possible, this ruling is conceded to be practically the end of a legal battle which has been carried on for several years for possession of young Chase. The decision dismissing Mr. Hoadley's petition for a writ of habeas corpus for young Chase affirms the right of the State court of Indiana in appointing the boy's father custodian of his person and property.

SHOT MOTHER

Fifteen Year Old Boy While Adjusting Rifle Accidentally Shoots His Mother.

Pataksala, O., Oct. 22.—While the 15 year old son of Gil Spelman, who resides some five miles northeast of Pataksala, was adjusting a cartridge in a new 22 calibre repeating rifle, the weapon was accidentally discharged, the ball passing through the right leg of Mrs. Spelman, who was washing dishes, and thence through the panel of a door and out the window. The wound is in the fleshy part of the limb, above the knee. It is a painful but not dangerous wound. Dr. Leatherman of Outville, was called and rendered surgical aid.

FORAKER IS ILL.

Sandusky, Oct. 22.—Senator Joseph R. Foraker was taken ill here Wednesday afternoon, and is threatened with pneumonia. His campaign speaking dates have been cancelled.

ANNUITY GIFT

Of $7,500 to Denison University is Announced by Dr. Hunt at the Delaware Baptist Meeting.

Delaware, O., Oct. 22.—The fourth meeting of the series of the Baptist anniversary—that of the Ohio Baptist Missionary convention—was opened by devotional exercises. The first address on the program was delivered by the president, W. Howard Doane, of Cincinnati.

Wednesday's program closed with a conference—"Lights and Shadows in Work with Mission Churches."

The most important report of the educational society was that of President Hunt, of Denison university, at Granville.

He delivered a splendid address and also gave a statement of the present state of the institution.

"We are now spending $30,000," said he, "on the improvement of the men's dormitories and are at work on a $40,000 central heating and lighting plant. An administration building for women will be constructed to cost $25,000, and $45,000 has just been provided for a new gymnasium and Young Men's Christian association building."

Dr. Hunt made the announcement that he had just been notified of a $7,500 annuity gift to the school, but the name of the donor is withheld.

ENLISTED

As a Soldier in the Regular Army, Though He is Heir to a Fortune of $200,000.

Columbus, O., Oct. 22.—Richard Garvin of Chicago, a Yale college graduate and brother of Virgil Garvin, the famous left-hand pitcher and heir to a fortune estimated at over $200,000, arrived in the Columbus barracks Wednesday as a recruit, having enlisted in Philadelphia last Saturday. Young Garvin is tired of spending money, he stated, and wants to lead a soldier's life for three years. Garvin was a star pitcher in Yale and pitched for the Trenton, N. J., team Thursday last against the New York National League team, allowing them but three hits. McGraw offered him $2,000 to sign with the New York Nationals.

Able to Be Flower Girl.

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 22.—At the marriage at Suffield last evening, of Julia Florence Spencer, to E. S. Goldthwaite, Lolita Armour, on whose account Dr. Lorenz came to this country acted as flower girl. Her mother is a cousin of the bride.

Registration tomorrow, 8 to 1 o'clock and 4 to 9 p. m.

DYNAMITE

WRECKED TWO BUILDINGS IN A WAYNE COUNTY TOWN.

Drugstore and Restaurant at Fredericksburg in a Uzzle—Wets and Dry at War.

Wooster, O., Oct. 22.—The residents of Fredericksburg, nine miles south of here, were awakened at 2 a. m. by two loud explosions that followed each other in quick succession. The people soon filled the streets, and were not long in learning that two business places had been dynamited. The restaurant of John Adams, occupying a small two story frame structure, was completely wrecked and the contents piled in a heap. Miss Mary Adams, who was sleeping in a rear apartment, was thrown against a ceiling and fell to the floor, but escaped serious injury.

The second explosion was at the drugstore of E. Z. Aylesworth. One corner of the two-story building was blown off and the contents of the store broken and thrown into confusion. The drug store is on the lower floor of the leading hotel of the town, and guests in apartments over the store were shaken up.

There is no clew to the perpetrators of the deed, and the motive is a mystery. The town has been dry for 14 years, but on November 2 votes on local option. It is claimed that intoxicants have been sold constantly, and had feeling has been engendered. The drys charge that the dynamiting was committed to throw the blame on them, while the wets believe that it was the work of some crank on the question of temperance.

TAMMANY WON

THE KINGS COUNTY DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE OF FIFTEEN

Recommended the Endorsement of the Entire Tammany Ticket—Improved Situation in Brooklyn.

New York, Oct. 22.—A newspaper dispatch sent out yesterday predicted that the Kings County Democratic Committee of 15 would endorse the entire Tammany ticket.

This was the important news of the great political battle now being waged in Greater New York between Tammany and all of its combined foes. At the last meeting of the Kings County Committee Senator P. H. McCarren, for years a follower of Hugh McLaughlin, the veteran leader of the Brooklyn Democracy, who opposed a part of Tammany ticket, because he thought he saw overthrow staring him in the face, led a revolt against McLaughlin, and sought to have the committee at its meeting endorse the Tammany ticket outright. While it was known that a good majority of the committee was with Senator McCarren as a matter of political principle and on the question of regularity in politics, Senator McCarren's resolution failed to carry by seven votes. Much was made of this by New York newspapers, the management of which did not understand the situation.

As was stated in a New York dispatch the defeat of McCarren's resolution and the appointment of a committee of fifteen, to which the matter was referred, was merely a sop to Mr. McLaughlin. On account of Senator McCarren's opposition to him Mr. McLaughlin, as well as his old-time chieftains, had appealed to leaders of delegations to "stand by the old man this last time." It was promised that a resolution would be introduced referring the matter to a committee of fifteen, the members of which would recommend endorsement of the Tammany ticket in its entirety and that McLaughlin would hereafter take a back seat. That such appeals were being made was known to Senator McCarren, but he thought he could win even as against the sympathetic dodge. He was unable to do so, however, for a sufficient number of votes was obtained to refer the matter to the fifteen committee, though most of those who voted for the reference most reluctantly so voted.

STRIKE SETTLED

Seven Hundred Employees Will Return to Work—Small Wage Increase—Union Not Recognized.

Jeffersonville, Ind., Oct. 22.—An agreement was reached Wednesday afternoon between the officials of American Car and Foundry company, and the 700 strikers, and the men will return to work. An increase in wages was granted, the men of from five to fifteen cents per day. There was no recognition of the union. The men originally demanded an increase of 25 per cent in wages. They have been out six weeks.

MRS. SPURGEON DEAD.
London, Oct. 22.—Mrs. Chas. Spurgeon, widow of the great preacher, died this morning.

QUEER CASE

In a Tennessee Court—The Victim of Supposed Murder Showed Up Alive and Well.

Knoxville, Tenn., Oct. 22.—For a third time, Silas Hulin, the supposed victim of a murder, was "resurrected" and appeared alive and well in the court room last evening as the chief witness in the habeas corpus proceedings brought to have Clarence Peak, who is under a sentence of 18 years for the murder of Hulin, liberated.

The court, however, dismissed the petition, holding in effect that Silas Hulin is dead to all intents and purposes and that the court has no legal right to interfere with the conviction and judgment, which has been properly secured. An appeal was prayed to the supreme court.

Two years ago Peak killed a man, who was identified as Hulin. He was tried and sentenced. In the meantime Hulin appeared, but the supreme court disregarded his presence and affirmed the sentence on its merits as tried below.

MISS SNYDER

And Mr. Frank Kearney Attendants at the Kearney-Murphy Wedding in Zanesville, O.

Zanesville, O., Oct. 22.—Miss Nellie Kearney and John Murphy were united in marriage Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock at St. Thomas church. Rev. E. J. Farmer officiated. The ceremony was beautiful in its simplicity. A musical mass followed the marriage.

The principals were attended by Miss Tillie Snyder and Frank Kearney of Newark. The bride wore a dark blue tailored suit with a hat of the same shade, the latter trimmed with white ostrich plumes. She carried white carnations. Her maid was also gowned in blue.

The wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's father, Michael Kearney, on Monroe street. Mr. and Mrs. Murphy will leave Tuesday evening at 9 o'clock for New York to spend a week. Mr. Murphy is employed in the B. & O. yards.

FASTEST MILE

Ever Made by a Green Trotter Was Witnessed at Lexington, Ky., on Wednesday.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 22.—The fastest mile ever worked by a green trotter was made over the local track Wednesday by a four year old mare in the stable of W. F. Freeman. She was given a preliminary warming and then sent out for a mark, making the mile in 2:06 3/4. The mare is by Axtell (2:12) out of Lena Rivers, and is owned by J. J. McDonald of Cuthbert, Ga. She made the last half in 1:02. This is remarkable as compared with the performance of other green trotters. Lou Dillon, while still considered a green mare, went a mile last year in 2:08 1/4 and Lord Derby went as a green horse in 2:07.

RECORD-BREAKING BABY.

Anderson, Ind., Oct. 22.—A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Dimon, No. 2219 South Main street, and he tipped the beam at 14 pounds. There were present when the baby arrived two grandmothers and two great-grandmothers.

MASKED BURGLARS

Invalidate St. John's Orphan Home at Wheeling—Catholic Sisters Were Bound and Gagged.

Wheeling, W. Va., Oct. 22.—Three masked burglars invaded St. John's Orphan Home for Boys in this city last night and after terribly beating one of the Catholic sisters in charge, bound her to the floor and proceeded to ransack the building. During the struggle the sister sank her teeth into one of the fingers of the man who was trying to gag her and almost severed it. The wounded robber left a trail of blood through the building. The sister was struck on the head with some blunt instrument and her condition is precarious. She was found bound to a gas pipe by other inmates of the institution on their return from church. Her assailants were frightened away by the approach and succeeded in making their escape by jumping from the second story window.

COLORED MEN ARRESTED.

Wheeling, W. Va., Oct. 22.—The police have arrested half a dozen colored men believing that in the lot they will find the assailants of Sister Alma of St. Joseph, who lost her arm and attempt of an assault at the Elm Grove Orphan's Home last night. It developed this morning that four masked colored men beat Sister Alma. People are greatly excited and all the officers in the city are scouring the country for the men.

DOWIE MEEK

A Great Change Has Come Over The "Prophet."

Last Night He Addressed His Audience in the Manner of a Gentleman--Elijah III Has no Success at "Healing."

New York, Oct. 22.—The biblical lamb could have hardly been more meek this morning than good old Dr. Dowie, who with years of experience in the art of "laying on of hands" and faith healing has given up his tobacco persiflage and last night addressed his audience in the manner of a gentleman. The wonderful change which has come over the "prophet" was a source of disappointment to those who went to the garden last night for a "rough house," but "Elijah" refused to be riled and stirred up and went through his discourse from beginning to end without belaboring the reporters and the minister. Columbia college students tried to break up the meeting but failed and two of the students were swept out into the night by the police.

Elijah III tried his hand at "healing" this morning and yesterday afternoon. It is reported that so far "no one has taken up his bed and walked."

The G. O. said it must be that something was the matter with the vitiated atmosphere of wicked New York. Meanwhile many of the host are down and out from the cramped life they are living in the garden, but a score of health department inspectors have them under observation.

TALKS ABOUT CONVERTING POPE.

New York, Oct. 22.—Having failed to make one convert in this up to date Gomorrah, has not discouraged Dr. Dowie from having high flights of imagination for at this morning's meeting he confessed to the ambition of converting the Pope at Rome. During his discourse, the Doctor touched on matters pertaining to his exchequer. He said that among the checks received in contributions were many bogus ones. He also said that the suits filed against him in Chicago were all personal matters and no one need worry about them.

YELLOW FEVER

Spreading in Texas Cities--Laredo, Houston and San Antonio all Afflicted--The State Fair At Latter City is Called Off.

Laredo, Tex., Oct. 22.—In the last 24 hours there have been 35 new cases of yellow fever and three deaths. The total number of cases to date is 471 with 39 deaths.

San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 22.—Four suspicious cases discovered here Tuesday night have been declared positively to be yellow fever. There were three deaths yesterday. The town is excited and hundreds of people are leaving, many going to Austin. An autopsy has been performed on the remains of one victim and State Health Officer

Taber announces officially that death was caused by yellow fever. The big fair in progress will be called off. This will mean a great loss to the city, as there have been 20,000 visitors here. The fever at present is confined to the slums of the town.

Houston, Tex., Oct. 22.—The Sells Bros. and Forepaugh's circus booked to appear here today, which left San Antonio Tuesday, was turned back at the city limits last night and ordered out of the state. The state of Louisiana has quarantined against San Antonio.

FREIGHT ENGINE

Blew Up in West Virginia, Killing Three Men and One Woman, Wrecking Latter's Home.

Elkins, W. Va., Oct. 22.—A freight engine on the West Virginia Central railroad, just out of the shop at Elkins, blew up in the Elkins yard Wednesday afternoon, killing William H. Little, engineer; Henry Collett, fireman; J. T. Harper, machinist, and Mrs. Kate Rabbett. John Dougherty, brakeman, and an unknown man were injured. While machinist Harper was testing the engine, the crown-sheet gave way. Mrs. Rabbett was working in her kitchen, 500 feet away, into which a part of the firebox was blown, killing her instantly. Her house was wrecked and that of A. A. Raddy adjoining was badly damaged. Telegraph wires were torn down, the tracks torn up and a box car and coke were wrecked. Harper and Collett were blown almost 500 feet away from where they stood.

KAISERS POEM

Translation of the Second and Third Verses Gives Gloomy Tenor of His Thoughts.

Berlin, Oct. 22.—The second and third verses of the poem written by His Majesty translated into English at Darmstadt, read as follows:

Second Verse:—"My happiness was born at night; It has only flourished in darkness. I have lost my joy in life, I wander wearily in gloom."

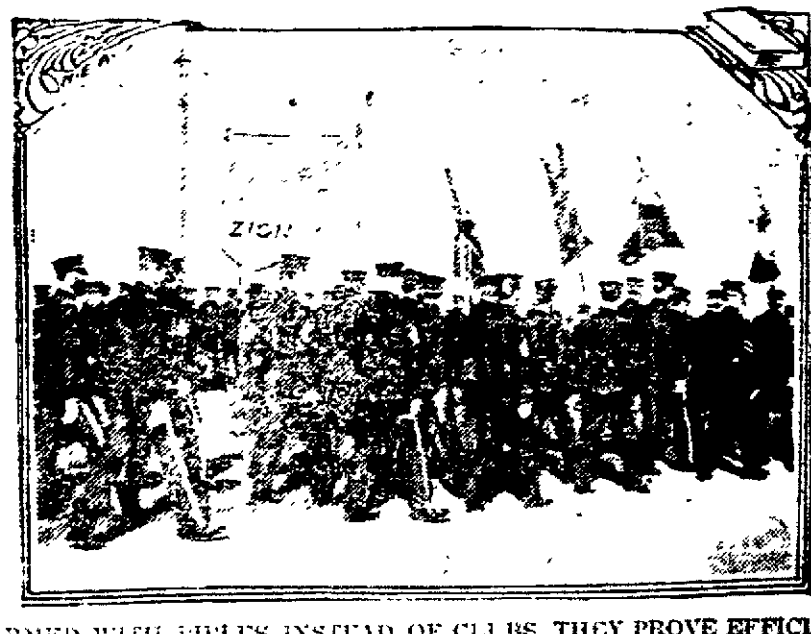

Third Verse:—"My soul gropes sadly searching in mental fog; it pines And prays and suffers, But finds no peace on earth."

The poem was written in German, and though when translated gives an idea of the gloomy tenor of His Majesty's thoughts, yet some of the words in German convey a veritable ecstasy of sorrow which no English word or phrase can express.

DISPLAY AD FILLED CHURCH.

Appleton, Wis., Oct. 22.—Rev. S. H. Anderson, Methodist pastor, says his church was full at both services last Sunday. As he had never before last Saturday used a display ad to call attention to his services here, he is not yet ready to estimate its benefits. He believes that in the case of a church which has the opportunity to attract the attendance of transients and strangers the advertisement will result in good.

LANGUAGE OF THE HAND.

Scarcely a sentiment it is not capable of expressing.

When a lover ventures for the first time to grasp the hand of his charmer she either withdraws it, and that is as much as to say, "I have no heart for you," or she suffers it, which is the same as if she said, "He whom I permit to touch my hand may hope also to touch my heart." In lovers' quarrels, indeed, the hand is withdrawn to express anger, but soon extended again in token of reconciliation. Who can tell all that is said by the hand which another is conveying to the lips to have a kiss imprinted upon it? This is done either slowly or hastily, either with trembling or boldly, and expresses civility or respect, gratitude or love. Two hands are folded together—their owner prays; the folded hands are raised—he solicits something; they are rubbed one against the other—he is impatient. The raised finger threatens; when bent it beckons; when extended it points. Two fingers produce the snap, a sign of contempt or defiance. The hand gives; the hand receives. Both speak aloud.

The hand likewise answers by a repulsive motion. A finger placed upon the lips indicates discretion. The ancient represented the god of silence in this attitude. How they have represented Venus everybody knows. The hand of the goddess says, "I am bashful." The Graces take each other by the hand, as much as to say, "We ought to be indivisible." Two hands firmly grasping each other are the symbol of fidelity. The clinched fist bespeaks rage and revenge, the hollowed hand implores alms, the hand laid upon the heart protests, the hand upon the forehead thinks, and the hand behind the ear expresses difficulties.

In a word, there is scarcely a sentiment which the hand is not capable of expressing, and it not only completely supplies the place of the mouth in speaking, but also, rather imperfectly, in kissing, for when the lips cannot approach the beloved object the hand throws kisses to her.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

BIRDS SING ON THE WING.

Their Notes Are More Charming When Warbled During Flight.

The songs of all birds gain in beauty when they are uttered on the wing. They seem to be delivered with more abandon and greater volume. The water thrush's first cousin, the oven bird, furnishes a striking example of this. His ordinary song consists of a repetition of the same note, hammered out with a constant crescendo. Very effective it is, too, as a part of the general music of the forest, though lacking individual attractiveness on account of the monotony of its iteration. But when the bird rises above the treetops and descends after the fashion of the indigo bird to an accompaniment of scattered notes he takes far higher rank as a performer.

Not always, however, does he require the exhilaration and inspiration of an aerial toboggan to cause him to abandon his plain chant for a more florid song. I have heard him sing the latter perched on a grapevine not two feet above the ground. And as if to show that he did not reserve his superior powers for special occasions he mingled it with his plain chant and ending with the song and sometimes reversing this order.

I love to see the oven bird on the ground. There is such a ludicrous assumption of dignity on his part as he strides about the stage, never for a moment forgetting himself so far as to hop. There is the same even, measured steadiness about his movements that there is in his chant. It is only when he launches himself into the fervent song that he forgets his staid demeanor.—Lippincott's.

BATHING AT OSTEND.

The Contrast Between Belgian and American Beach Customs.

How differently from ourselves Europeans do some things is shown by the marked contrast between the bathing customs and methods at the typical American beach and those at a leading seaside resort abroad, such, for instance, at Ostend, Belgium. The American way is too familiar to our readers to need description. At Ostend bathing, which is the most striking thing about the city, is carried on in accordance with continental ideas of propriety most shocking to the average American. Instead of the ordinary dressing rooms, Ostend was the first place to use the little individual houses on wheels, into which the intending bather goes to disrobe and don his or her bathing suit. The house is then wheeled out in the water by a horse driven by a man employed for that purpose. The steps are let down from the little house, and the bather enters the water without having to promenade over the sand. At the end of the bath the bather mounts the steps into his little house and, calling the driver again, has his dressing room hauled up high and dry on the shore, where, having dressed at his leisure, he leaves the key with an attendant and goes on his way. The bathing costumes seen at Ostend are noted for their scantiness, the striking peculiarity of which, however, lies in the fact that the suits worn by the women rarely, if ever, have any skirts attached to them, everybody—men, women and children alike—wearing tight fitting suits, the suits furnished by most of the public bath houses being identically the same for both men and women.

The scene on the beach is one of great animation, and when the bathers engage, as they frequently do, in a game resembling basket ball, played with a large inflated rubber ball, the mingling of varicolored bathing suits and the darting hither and thither of the bathers at play, now on the beach and again in the water, is a sight never to be forgotten.—Leslie's Weekly.

ENGINE TRANCE.

A Sort of Temporary Paralysis That Sometimes Affects Track Men.

"The numerous fatal accidents reported in the newspapers to rail layers that occur every year on the various railroad systems throughout the country are not in every case due, as is generally supposed by the public, to negligence or carelessness on the part of the workers themselves," said a New York physician and surgeon employed by the New York Central railroad.

"The fact is, the hearing of these men in time becomes affected owing to the constant stooping position which they are obliged to assume in laying the rails, putting the bolts in, etc., and that renders them often oblivious to approaching trains, notwithstanding the fact that they work in gangs and have lookout men near at hand. Another fact which is accountable in many instances for fatal accidents to rail layers is what is known among the men themselves as 'engine trance.' This I might describe more clearly as a temporary sort of paralysis which affects simultaneously both the mind and body. The 'stroke' lasts only a few seconds, but those few seconds mean life or death when a fast train is approaching.

"A rail layer who may be in perfect physical condition is not proof against the powerful fascination as he gazes along the rails and sees an engine with its row of cars coming toward him at express speed. Although he has been warned by the lookout and the shouts of his fellows of the approaching danger, he will pay no heed, but stand spellbound for an instant. And that instant's delay is generally fatal, or, if not, it results in the amputation of a leg.

"There are few rail layers who have not, they will tell you, experienced this peculiar trance at one time or another during their careers on the track. Animals are also subject to 'engine trance,' particularly dogs and cats, and that no doubt accounts to some extent for the large number of them as well as other animals that are killed on the railroad."—New York Times.

Home Influence.

It was during the reading lesson in one of our public schools that a little lad read in a jerky, expressionless way, "Mamma, see the hawk."

The reading was so very poor that the teacher said, "John, you know you would not talk that way to your mother."

"No'm," replied the lad.

"Well, now," said the teacher in a kindly way, "you read it exactly as you would say it to your mother."

And here is his reply: "Look, mom, at that there hawk!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

Sailors Are Fond of Sweet Things.

Sailors are very fond of sweet things, and to one who knows little about them it is surprising to learn the quantity of candy they consume. In the ship's store are kept buckets of this article, which is one of the chief commodities in exchange for which a sailor parts with his pocket money. On large ships several thousand pounds of candy are frequently consumed on a cruise.—Gunter's Magazine.

Bowser's Night Off

He Differs With His Wife Concerning How He Returned to His Home—Was Invited to the Club, The Next Morning He Fell Depressed and Lonesome, but Mrs. B. Knew the Symptoms

[Copyright, 1903, by C. B. Lewis]

"I THINK," said Mr. Bowser as he rose from the dinner table, "I think I'll just look in on the club this evening. I haven't been around for a long time, and two or three of the members were speaking to me today about it. I don't suppose you have any objections, have you?"

"Not in the least," replied Mrs. Bowser. "As you say, you haven't been there for a long time."

"There may be a little speaking, as some prominent man from Chicago is to be there, and it is quite likely I'll be called upon. If so—"

"You will decline, of course."

"Why should I decline?"

"Because the only speech you have is something about the labor question, and that won't be exactly the thing to

"THERE MAY BE A LITTLE SPEAKING," get off at a club. You will respectfully decline, of course, on account of a sore throat."

He growled around for a time and said something about passing the evening in a saloon, but finally dressed himself and departed, saying that he might not be back for a month. That was at 9 o'clock in the evening. The next thing he knew Mrs. Bowser was waking him up, and it was 8 o'clock next morning. He got up slowly out of bed, yawning and stretching, and observed:

"I believe we are going to have an awful storm by tomorrow. I feel lonesome and depressed this morning, and I ache as if I was coming down with rheumatism."

"Y-e-s," replied Mrs. Bowser without raising her eyes.

"I suppose you are tickled half to death all over that little joke you came on me last night?" he continued.

"Joke? I do not know what you mean."

"I can appreciate fun as well as the next person, but it mustn't be carried too far—not too far, Mrs. Bowser. I went down to the club last night for the first time in three months. You were put out at my going. I didn't get home until half past 10 o'clock, and as—"

"It was exactly 1 o'clock, Mr. Bowser."

"Never! I looked at my watch as I opened the front door. As I was say-

"YOU WERE SITTING ON THE STEPS WITH YOUR ARM AROUND ONE OF THE POSTS."

ing, the result was that I slept unusually sound, and you took advantage of the circumstance to indulge in some funny business."

"Mr. Bowser, when I heard you fall against the front door the bells were just striking 11."

"What! What! I fell against the front door?"

"You did, and when I went down you were sitting on the steps with your arm around one of the posts. I had considerable trouble to induce you to come in."

"Mrs. Bowser, have you gone crazy?" shouted Mr. Bowser as he stood up and gaped and swallowed and turned red and glared at her.

"No, dear."

"Then you intend to insult me! If I came home at 1 o'clock and fell against the door and you found me hugging the railing and I had to be coaxed into the house the inference is plain."

"Yes; your condition last night accounts for your depressed spirits today. It is not going to storm, Mr. Bowser. The predictions are for clear weather for the next three or four days to come."

"My condition last night? By the great horn spoon, but you must have lost your senses. Do you mean to say that I came home drunk?"

"No, not exactly drunk. I believe you men folks use a term called swizzled, don't you? You were not drunk, but swizzled. I had to help you upstairs. I started to undress you, but you cried out, 'G'way f'm me or I'll knock your head off!' And I went away."

"Wo-woman, you are crazy!" gasped Mr. Bowser, who was so weak in the knees that he had to sit down.

"You did manage to get your coat off, I believe," she placidly continued, "but that tired you out, and when you awoke this morning you were surprised to find that you had slept in your hat and shoes and most of your clothing."

"I slept in my hat, did I?" murmured Mr. Bowser.

"Yes, and several times before morning you also talked through your hat. I believe you men folks make use of such expression, don't you? When you awoke and realized the situation you thought I had been trying to be funny."

"Mrs. Bowser, you—you didn't get a telegram that your mother was dead?"

"Oh, no! Mother is enjoying splendid health. Nothing has happened to suddenly dethrone my reason, Mr. Bowser."

"But you are a great hand to dream vivid dreams. Your dreams are sometimes so realistic that you scream out and wake me up."

"Yes, I know, but I don't get out of bed and go downstairs and find you on the steps. It doesn't take me twenty minutes to get you upstairs, and you don't kick over chairs and yell out that you can lick the whole police force. It is no use to deny facts, Mr. Bowser. You say it was half past 10 o'clock?"

"I'll stake my life on it!"

"And yet I looked at your watch, and it had stopped at 9:40."

Mr. Bowser simply sat and glared at her with open mouth.

"I'm not complaining," she quietly continued. "It isn't such a dreadful thing for a husband to go to a club and come home swizzled and to bed with his clothes on. I expect that nine out of ten do it; only they shouldn't get up next morning and lay it all on their wives, you know."

There was silence for the next two minutes—silence so thick that it could have been sliced off like cold ham. Then Mr. Bowser resumed his dressing and said:

"I am charged with having come home in an inebriated condition last night. That charge is made by my wife. I do not know what her object is, but—"

"We might call it rheumatism," interrupted Mrs. Bowser. "Rheumatism does act that way sometimes, doesn't it?"

"Woman, you have reached the limit—the dead line! For your sake I have borne much. Hoping that you would

HOW SLEEP MAY BE WOODED

Movements of the Feet Will Quiet the Nervous Brain.

MOST of the mental devices for wooing sleep have failed because they have nearly always tried to resort to "local treatment." In other words, they have made a homeopathic attempt to stop thinking by thinking about something else, a process which might also be called "elimination by substitution." But all thinking, spontaneous or forced, draws more or less blood to the brain, prevents deep inhalations and bars the gate to the kingdom of dreams. Any device, on the other hand, which will make one take deep, long breaths spontaneously, the invariable forerunner of sleep, may be counted upon as a genuine remedy for insomnia. Even deep breathing which is forced is better than any purely mental attempt to win sleep, but if the deep breathing can be produced involuntarily one is sure of a passport to Nodland.

After several nights of experiment to this desired end the writer decided to apply the principle adopted by the masseurs, who begin their manipulations "at the point farthest from the seat of difficulty," which in the case of insomnia would be the feet. Lying on the right side, with the knees together and considerably flexed, the victim of insomnia should begin to pedal both his feet slowly up and down, with the movement entirely in the ankles. The pedaling should keep time with the natural rhythm of respiration and be continued until it is followed by deep and spontaneous breathing.

Several people who have tried this remedy report that involuntary deep breathing invariably begins before they have pedaled up and down a dozen times. In obstinate cases of insomnia the patient may need to keep up the pedaling two or three minutes or even more, with intermissions, if necessary. The treatment may also be varied by moving the feet alternately instead of simultaneously, though the latter method has proved the more speedily efficacious in the cases known to the writer. The explanation of the result obtained is probably simple. The blood is pumped from the head, and with the removal of brain tension a general relaxation follows, with a consequent deep respiration and its resulting sleep.—Good Housekeeping.

WHAT THE MOON CAN TELL

A clear moon indicates frost.

A dull looking moon means rain.

A single halo around the moon indicates a storm.

If the moon looks high, cold weather may be expected.

If the moon looks low down, warm weather is promised.

The new moon on her back always denotes wet weather.

A double halo around the moon means very boisterous weather.

If the moon changes with the wind in the east, then shall we have bad weather.

If the moon be bright and clear when three days old, fine weather is promised.

When the moon is visible in the daytime, then may we look forward to cool days.

When the points of the crescent of the new moon are very clearly visible, frost may be looked for.

If the new moon appear with its points upward, then will the month be dry, but should the points be downward more or less rain must be expected during the next three weeks.—American Queen.

Confounding a Doubter.

"This paper says that they have just discovered the remains of a twenty foot saurian on the banks of the Penobscot river."

"What's a saurian?"

"I dunno. Guess maybe it's one of them misprints for a sardine."

"There ain't no twenty foot sardines."

"Well, there might be the remains of one."

"I don't believe it. Do you suppose anybody'd want ter buy a box of such sardines? I guess not."

"You're too dern critical. Ef there is th' remains o' any twenty foot sardines on th' Penobscot don't you suppose there might also be th' remains of men big enuff to buy 'em by the box? You're a atheist, thet's what you are."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Chorus—What of that?

The Colonel—And, confound it, I've got into the habit of thinking aloud.—New York Times.

St. Dunstan and the Devil.

One of the most famous saints of the Weald was St. Dunstan, archbishop of Canterbury. Mayfield, in Sussex, is the site of an ancient archiepiscopal palace, and here, according to some, took place the terrific encounter between St. Dunstan and the devil. At any rate, the anvil, hammer and tongs which are alleged to have belonged to the saint are still preserved at Mayfield palace.—Gentleman's Magazine.

HEALTH MEDALS ON PARIS DOGS.

Paris, Oct. 22.—Dogs in Paris will hereafter be obliged to wear health medals. The board of hygiene of the Paris Medical academy has advised the municipal authorities to adopt this measure in connection with the dog tax. It will be a certificate that the dog was examined, is healthy and has an owner, and will distinguish such dogs from vagabond curs and diminish the danger of hydrophobia. A similar measure is already enforced in the suburban towns of St. Denis, Arcieres and Suresnes.

MILLER CASE

AGAIN IN WASHINGTON OFFICIAL CIRCLES

Comptroller Decides Miller Can Not Draw Salary While He Was Dismissed from Service.

Washington, Oct. 22.—Comptroller of the Treasury Tracwell has decided that W. A. Miller, the assistant for-man of the book bindery at the government printing office, who was dismissed by Public Printer Palmer and afterwards reinstated by President Roosevelt over the protests of the book binders' union, from which Miller had been expelled, is not entitled to pay for the time of his enforced absence from work.

Miller claimed that he was a government officer protected by civil service rules and could not be denied the compensation, as his reinstatement amounted to a repudiation of the action of the public printer, and a vindication of his assertion that his suspension and dismissal were illegal.

The comptroller holds, first, that Miller is not a public officer, but an employee and can be appointed or dismissed at the pleasure of the public printer. Secondly that the power of appointment carried with it the power of removal. Thirdly that the performance of certain work is the absolute prerequisite for compensation to government printing office employees, and even should suspension or dismissal afterward be found to be without sufficient cause pay cannot be allowed for work not performed.

SUICIDE

Man After Following Woman Whom He Claimed as His Wife, Took Carbolic Acid.

Lima, O., Oct. 22.—Robert E. Potter, 22, after following a woman whom he claimed as his wife all over the country, ended his life by swallowing carbolic acid last night. Potter has parents either in Toledo or Indianapolis. He was in the regular army, serving in the Philippines, deserting some months ago. The woman says she was not married to him.

Last night he wrote her a note asking her to return to him, and receiving no answer he took the poison.

SERIES OF ACCIDENTS CAUSED BY A COW.
Marquette, Wis., Oct. 22.—A peculiar succession of accidents resulted in this city from the unruly actions of a cow. John Homascus, 13 years of age, who was sent after the animal, caught his foot in the spokes while attempting to drive the cow home, breaking his leg.

The boy's parents were notified and started for the scene in a wagon. The team became frightened at a steam roller and ran away both being thrown out and badly injured. The three were taken to a hospital. The horses ran into a creek and were nearly drowned.

THIEVES BROKE INTO CHURCH.
Fremont O., Oct. 22.—Thieves entered St. Joseph Catholic church last night, blew open a large safe in a small room off the altar and secured a hundred dollars in cash. They also stole several valuable altar articles.

METZ INSURANCE CASE HEARD AND SUBMITTED

Five Thousand Dollar Damage Suit—Goodin Divorce Case—Real Estate Transfers—Court News.

The Court today heard the case of Elizabeth K. Metz vs. Chas. C. Metz, et al, in which the plaintiff asks to recover a portion of the insurance money received on account of the burning of an ice house in East Newark several years ago. The testimony was heard, together with the arguments of counsel, and the cause submitted. J. B. Jones; Smythe & Smythe.

Damage Case.
Mattie Moore has brought suit against Henry Athey for $5000 damages, alleging that she has been injured to that amount by false imprisonment. She alleges that she and one Stephen Hester were arrested at the instigation of Athey on the charge of living together in an unlawful manner. That on the hearing of the case they were discharged. But that in the meantime she and Hester had been locked up in the city prison over night at the request of said Athey.

Wants a Divorce.
Myrtle Goodin by her attorney, Judge Waldo Taylor, has filed her petition in the Common Pleas court asking for a divorce from her husband, John J. Goodin. The parties were married August 30, 1902. Plaintiff alleges that her husband has been guilty of extreme cruelty, and drunkenness, and that he was also addicted to the vice of gambling.

Constable Bound Over.
James Balthis, constable of Hebron was bound over to the grand jury by Squire J. R. Atcherley Wednesday, on a charge of assault and battery with attempt to kill, on Isaac Hatfield. He gave bond for $100.

Court Notes.
Patience B. Bounds, administratrix of the estate of James C. Bounds, has filed her inventory and appraisal. Chas. U. Stevens has been appointed administrator of the estate of Leonard Hines, deceased. Bond $1000.

Hanna stands pat; the office-holders do the anteing.

Boss Cox is fixing to succeed Foraker in the senate. Hanna and Cox! And Ohio once had a good reputation.

A vote for Tom L. Johnson is a vote for a just system of taxation. A vote for Myron T. Herrick is a vote in favor of a system of taxation that discriminates in favor of the very rich and against those of moderate means.

The people of Ohio, without much regard to politics, are very thoroughly disgusted with the pretended piety of Mark Hanna on the stump, and his continual coupling the name of President McKinley with him. The memory of William McKinley is entitled to something better.

Not for 40 years has bribery, looting and corruption been so prevalent in the national capital as at this time. It is worse than the Delknap regime. And the people of Ohio are asked to vote to endorse this administration. Is there an honest man who thinks that it deserves indorsement?

The thing for you to do, be you Democrat, or honest, independent Republican, is to go to the polls and vote for the Democratic ticket from top to bottom. You may not personally like every candidate, but they represent honesty and honorable methods applied to public affairs. The ticket headed by Mark A. Hanna stands for all that is mercenary and disreputable in politics.

WHAT DO THEY CARE?

In every meeting which Hanna attends, and they are all supposed to be Republican meetings, he emphatically declares that Johnson is not a Democrat. He tells his Republican hearers that the Democratic platform this year is not Democratic at all, and that Johnson has departed from the Democratic principles.

What does Hanna suppose that these Republican hearers care about all this? What does Hanna himself care about it? Who appointed him the censor to pass upon platforms for the Democrats? Who asked for his opinion? What does Hanna know about Democratic or any other principles? When did he rise to be arbiter of political platforms and principles?

The only effect that Hanna's assertions in the matter will have is that Republicans who hear him take on so in regard to the Democratic platform this year will be pretty likely to look the matter up and see whether the platform is not a pretty good thing to tie to.

A DECADE OF CORRUPTION

Twelve or fifteen years ago the Republican leaders of Ohio discovered that they could only get control of the legislature and state government by bringing forward first class men for office and afterward administering public affairs with some degree of justice to all the people.

Ten years ago came the new Republican regime in Ohio. The old Republican idea was abandoned, and the new leaders set about retiring the men who made the party what it was in its best days. The new leaders made two or three important discoveries.

For one thing they discovered that "politics and business are carried on by the same methods," and, as per consequence, "money is of more importance than brains." And during the past decade Republican politics, not only in Ohio, but throughout the whole country, have been run in accordance with these two theories.

Men of all parties need not be told that the public virtue has suffered immeasurably by this system of "running politics by business methods," as Senator Hanna says he does. The amount of official corruption of all kinds each year has increased under this regime from the smallest county offices up to the great departments at Washington, until this class of stealings were five times as great in 1902, as in 1892.

What say honest men of all parties, is it not time that this regime of corruption be ended?

OLD MARY ANN

HAS LARGEST DEMOCRATIC MEETING OF CAMPAIGN.

Democrats from all Over Township Assemble to Hear Issues Discussed by Able Speakers

The Democratic meeting held at the Langley school house, in old Mary Ann township, one of the Democratic strongholds of Licking county, on Wednesday night, was a cracker-jack. It was one of the best country meetings held in the county this campaign. The large school house was packed with enthusiastic Democrats, while not a few Republicans were in attendance. It looked as though every Democrat in the township had turned out to hear the issues of the campaign discussed, and there were also a number from Newark.

Squire W. F. Holton was chairman of the meeting and introduced the speakers in a few happy and appropriate remarks. Attorney B. F. McDonald was the first speaker. He spoke for nearly an hour. He gave a brief history of the Democratic party and showed how it had stood for the masses of the people, and had always been true to its name. He arraigned the Republican administration upon its policy of imperialism, and drew some conclusions as to the result of the policy that has been pursued by the Republican party in this regard. He denounced Mark Hanna as a man wholly unfit to occupy the seat that he does, and gave a brief history of his election to the United States Senate.

The next speaker was City Solicitor T. B. Smythe, of Newark. Mr. Smythe contrasted the character of Tom L. Johnson and the other leaders of the Democratic party as against Mark Hanna and the other leaders of the Republican party. Mr. Smythe dwelt at considerable length on the inequalities of taxation, and especially the inequalities of taxation right here at home in Licking county. He closed his admirable address by going into an explanation of the single tax. Mr. Smythe's address was a most excellent one, and will give those who heard him something to think and talk about between this and the election.

Hon. W. D. Benner, the Democratic candidate of Licking county for Representative, was the next speaker. Mr. Benner told the voters present that he stood squarely on the Democratic platform and that if elected he would do all in his power to see that the wastes of the Democracy were carried out. He discussed some of the planks in the platform that had not been mentioned by the other speakers. His remarks were attentively listened to and the speaker made a good impression on his hearers.

Sheff W. H. Anderson, Jr., chairman of the Democratic Central Committee who was present at the meeting, was called on for a speech. Mr. Anderson responded by giving them a short address, which was full of pith. He told his auditors that the County Committee was endeavoring to instill into the mind of the voters of the county the principles advocated by Tom L. Johnson, and that if the Democrats won this election it would be by instructing the people on the issues involved. He said that if the matter rested on the question as to which party had the most money that the Democrats were already beaten, for the Republicans had hundreds of dollars to the Democrats' one dollar. He said that if the people thoroughly understood the issues they would not have to be paid to go to the polls but that they would be anxious to go, and vote their sentiments. He closed with a stirring appeal for every Democratic voter to rally to the polls on the third of November.

ANCIENT FISH CURES

MEDICINAL VIRTUES THAT USED TO DECK FINNY TRIBE.

Perch Was Valued In Germany For Its Curative Properties, and Carp Was Held In High Esteem In Old England—The Physician of Fishes.

Fishing literature prior to the days and writings of Izaak Walton opens up points of interest which are unique. Not the least interesting are the constant references of the early writers to the medicinal virtues of fish. Of course many of the salt and fresh water fishes mentioned by the old writers are not recognized in the waters of today, but the fresh water perch, carp, tunc and eel are yet recognized, and it is in connection with these fish that some of the quaintest ideas as to their medicinal virtues have prevailed.

The Germans have a comparative proverb which says, "More wholesome than a perch of the Rhine," and it is certain that from the earliest times this familiar fish has been esteemed as one of the best gastronomic productions of fresh water. It has also been ascribed medicinal virtues. Gesner says that physicians value the perch so much that they recommend it to be freely eaten by wounded men, women in childbirth and those suffering from dangerous fevers. Aldrovandus praises it and mentions that the two otoliths ("round bones") found in the head of the perch are marvelously good for stone in the bladder.

That the carp was esteemed in olden times in England is certain. Dame Berners, writing in her quaint "Treatise of Divesynghe Wyth an Angle," published in 1496, says, "The carpe be a deynous fish, but there ben few in Englonde." Being "deynous"—i. e., "dainty"—it must have been a good fish at that time to eat. It has certainly lost its character since then.

In the art of healing the carp plays a respectable part. One old writer speaks of the fat of the carp as being of marvellous power for the alleviation of "hot rheumatism." The manner of its application was by frequent rubbing on the painful part, and the effect was said to be eminently mollifying and salutary. The triangular bones in the throat of the carp on being ground to powder and applied to a wound or bleeding nose were said to act as styptic. The gall was also said to have been used for sore eyes, and "above the eyes," says an old Æsculapius, "two little bones exist, semicircular in shape, which are diligently preserved by noble females against the lunatic disease."

In the "Haven of Health" carp are also comprised in "the ten sortes of fische which are reckoned as principal in the preservation of health," and, adds the quaint old writer, "this fish is of great wholesomeness and great value, and its tongue is very pleasant to carping ladies."

A kind of first cousin of the carp is what is known as the barbel. Such ancients as Juvenal, Albertus and others of that ilk evidence that it was known and esteemed by the Roman gourmet. Plutarch mentions a curious fact in its natural history. Dr. Badham in his "Prose Hæcetics" translates this passage as follows: "The rod of the barbel is very poisonous. Antonio Galius took two boluses and thus describes his sensations: 'At first I felt no inconvenience, but some hours having elapsed I began to be disagreeably affected, and as my stomach swelled and could not be brought down by anise and carminatives I was soon in a state of great depression and distress.' It appears that his countenance was pallid, like a man in a swoon. Deadly coldness ensued, and violent cholera and vomiting came on. The barbel (Barbus vulgaris) of today has survived such poisonous qualities. Its flesh has the taste of stewed white blotting paper, and its roe is as innocuous as bread pills.

All the same, good Juliana Berners shared the bad opinion of the earlier writers. She says: "The barbelly is a sweet fish, but it is quashy mete and perious for manys bodye. For comynly he yurth an introduction to ye febris (fever), and if ye be eten rawe he may cause of manys dethe which lath often bene seene." The tunc which has been introduced into some parts of this country is an olive greenish carp which has been for long time termed in England the "physician of fishes." According to a score or more of authorities, ancient and modern, the thick slime with which it is covered exerts healing effect on all wounds or diseases in which it can come in contact on or in other fishes. Whence this belief originated is not known, but one instance of exact observation is well worthy of credence. Mr. Wright in his book on "Fishes and Fishing" tells how a minnow accidentally hooked in the water of an aquarium in which it was swimming, on breaking loose, immediately descended three parts of the way down the water and swiftly approached its nose to the side of the tunc which was its companion in the aquarium. It rubbed its nose for a few seconds against the tunc and then again swam about as lively as before. To this testimony Mr. Wright adds: "We (my friend and I who were watching the performance) were both of the opinion that it is really no fable as to the tunc being the Æsculapius of fishes, for here was an example before our eyes of a fish being wounded and immediately instinct directing it to seek a remedy."

One piscatorial truth is known to all who fish for pike or pickerel. The pike (Æsoclus) will ravenously seize as his prey the fry of almost every fish, including his own species, and all the bait minnows are also carvers to him, but he will not touch the tunc—Brooklyn Eagle.

Ran a Ten Penny Nail Through His Hand.

While opening a box, J. C. Mount, of Three Mile Bay, N. Y., ran a ten penny nail through the fleshy part of his hand. "I thought at once of all the pain and soreness this would cause me," he says, "and immediately applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm and occasionally afterwards. To my surprise it removed all pain and soreness and the injured parts were soon healed." For sale by all druggists.

OFFICERS OF OHIO NATIONAL GUARD WILL RECOMMEND

That the Ohio Division be Represented at the Army Maneuvers Next Year.

The officers of the Ohio National Guard have agreed to recommend to the Governor, who is elected this fall, the advisability of sending the entire Ohio division to the coming maneuvers to be held either at Fort Riley or West Point, Ky., next year.

The National Guard association, which met in Dayton this week elected the following officers:

President, General John C. Speaks; vice president, Colonel H. E. Meade; Dayton; secretary, Colonel Howard, Toledo; treasurer, Major Catrow, Milanburg; chaplain, Rev. John Hewitt, Columbus; executive committee, the above officers, General McMaken and Colonel Vollrath.

Complimentary to the executive committee, General Speaks appointed the following legislative committee, which will act in conjunction with the former committee on all legislation desired by the organization during the year: Lieut. Col. Byri L. Bargar, Columbus; Major McQuigg, Cleveland; Major A. D. Critchfield, Columbus; Major Corn, Ironton; Major Dupuy, Dayton, and Colonel E. T. Miller, Columbus.

Columbus was represented by Brigadier General John C. Speaks, Colonel C. S. Ammel, Colonel E. T. Miller, Colonel Freeman, Major M. L. Wilson, Major L. F. Guerin, Captain Baird, Captain S. B. Taylor, and Captain Knauss of Newark, who is a member of the Fourth regiment medical corps.

First Day of Piano Sale Passes.

Newark Promptly Responds to the Opportunity to get good pianos at 1-4, 1-3 to 1-2 off.

A Number of Pianos and Organs Sold.

Easy terms offered on the one straight priced plan, marked in plain figures, brings out the lookers.

Yesterday was the initial day of my piano sale. My business here a year ago was such a remarkable one that I had a curiosity to see its effect this time. In my 1902 sale I had three drays delivering pianos and never any of those pianos came back.

Yesterday evidenced the same interest it did Monday night. The pianos were not out of the boxes before the lookers began to come—some to buy, some to get terms, some to rent—all had a want and appreciated the opportunity to secure

A first class $450 new upright piano for $318 on payments, $25 cash and $10 per month.

A $375 piano for $278, containing the finest best Wessell, Nickle & Gross action, on $15 cash and $8 per month.

A good $325 piano for $221 and a $225 piano for $138.

Organs at $69, worth $125; $59 worth $85; $39 worth $65; surprised the organ lookers.

Reader, a visit of inspection is necessary at once, quickly—come in and look at these pianos. Decide the one you want and do it immediately. We sell pianos, and the one you want may be gone.

The terms will be made to suit you and in case of sickness your instrument will not be taken away. There are no better pianos on earth than the Kimball, Steger, Singer, Hinze, and the money will be refunded if the instrument is not as represented. Call or write. Come tonight. Store open until 9, standard time.

There is quite a joke on one of our farmers. He was engaged in sowing wheat and was apparently thinking of something other than his work. While thus thinking he sowed all the wheat in the drill and still continued going on. Finally he saw his mistake, and was patently retracting the unsowed ground when one of his friends surprised him by asking him why he was sowing the same ground twice. Then he told him and he circulated the joke. But the person whom the joke was on consoles himself that he finally found out that he was not sowing wheat before it was too late.

FINE SERMON

Preached by Dr. Kaylor at the First Presbyterian Church Wednesday Evening.

A large audience listened attentively to a logical, convincing sermon last evening by Dr. Kaylor.

Miss Robinson sang, "Saved by Grace," and led the chorus in Gospel songs.

The audiences are increasing from night to night and the people are appreciating the forceful presentation of the Gospel.

Dr. Kaylor's theme Wednesday night was "God Glorified in Redemption." Text, Ez 36: 23. "I will sanctify my great name." He said a government is always known by the conditions of its subjects. The husbandman by the condition of his farm. It may be unfair to apply this rule to our faith and its founder, but men do so.

How close the mouth of the world in saying "I'm as good as a Christian?" To the intelligent mind there is no doubt but what there are two ways open to God to sanctify His name. First, in our destruction, secondly in our salvation. We cannot doubt but the measure of justice measured out to fallen angels will be measured to the man who to the last deliberately rejects the call of grace. The easiest way to rid society of a bad man is to cut his head off. But to soften his nature and transform him into a kind, loving gentleman, make him worthy of occupying the post of dignity and honor in the world, that were a miracle of divine grace. What marvelous things are enacted on the stage of redemption, and all of them illustrative of the power of God. The blind are gazing, the deaf, the dumb, the deaf are listening to the songs of the dumb; across a lake which a winter wind never paved walks a human form, stepping from wave cliff to wave cliff; the tenant of the grave becomes the conqueror, the prisoner has bound his fallow and carried away the keys.

The world's renowned character who abandoned by His friends, repudiated by His countrymen, seemingly forsaken by God and confessed by a thief only, makes it possible that to-night we can preach His love as a means whereby He saves fellowmen. Services every night this week at 7:15 o'clock.

We are glad to note that Hebron is to have another good strong lecture course this winter as the following numbers indicate:

Nov. 13, Hawthorne Musical Club.

Nov. 11, Mattison W. Chase, subject "Why, or the Problem of Life."

Jan. 1, Wesleyan Male Quartette of Nebraska.

Feb. 9, Cecilian Concert Company of New York.

March 5, J. Wight Giddings, subject, "Uncle Sam's People."

These lectures are very helpful and elevating to society and should be largely attended. Season tickets consisting of five numbers can be obtained for $1.

Our village was well represented at the Lancaster Fair Saturday.

The firm of Atwood & Brown has dissolved partnership, Mr. Brown retiring.

Miss Rosa Burch of Coshocton, is visiting her father at his home in the west end.

Mrs. L. Aid of Granville, is spending a few days with her mother, Mrs. Ellen Cully.

The condition of A. R. Neel of Buckeye Lake, is quite serious.

Mrs. Ella Rogers who has been suffering with rheumatism for several weeks, is slowly improving.

T. H. Conode of Corning, O., will move his family here this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Sanford of Granville, were guests of D. T. Crawshaw and wife Sunday.

Elder Bretz of Indiana held a two days meeting at the old school Baptist church this week.

H. H. Blwing was a guest at D. Burch's Wednesday.

Messrs. T. M. White, Dr. O. M. Kramer and D. P. Burch with their wives were in Lancaster Saturday taking in the fair.

John Lamp has sold his meat market to Merrick Brown, who will take possession November 11.

After a pleasant visit with Miss Lulu Ritchey at Zanesville Mrs. Helen Combs returned home Sunday evening.

Quite a number from here contemplate attending the Union township Bible school convention at Union Chapel next Sunday.

M. A. CASSIDY
Prominent Educator and Superintendent of Schools, Lexington, Ky.
Recommends Vinol as Being the Best Cod Liver Oil Preparation.

There has been of late a good deal of discussion in Newark regarding the merits of cod liver oil preparations, and whether or not cod liver oil and emulsions that upset the stomach have any medicinal virtues. Therefore the following letter will be read with interest:

M. A. CASSIDY.
"I am pleased to state that after using different cod liver oil preparations on the market, I find Vinol to be the best of them all. It is palatable and pleasant to the taste; in fact, the oily taste of the cod liver oil is disguised or done away with entirely, and its strengthening properties are truly remarkable.
"It has built up my system, strengthened my nerves; in fact, it has made a new man of me, enabling me to take up my work with renewed energy and vigor, and I heartily endorse Vinol as the most efficacious and agreeable cod liver oil preparation on the market."

M. A. Cassidy.
Knowing that Mr. Frank D. Hall, of this city, guarantees this preparation in the strongest manner possible, he was called upon for information. Said Mr. Hall: "Vinol I firmly believe is the world's greatest preparation of cod liver oil, for it contains in a highly concentrated form every one of the fifty odd medicinal curative elements found in cod liver oil, yet is entirely free from oil or grease.
"Vinol is delicious to taste and acceptable to the weakest stomach. It contains no drugs or poisonous ingredients, and there is no necessity for people to load their stomachs with drugs, nauseating oils or emulsions to obtain the curative power of cod liver oil, for it is all contained in Vinol. Vinol is the greatest strength creator and health restorer known to medicine today. I could quote innumerable instances where it has fortified and built up the system, strengthened the nerves, cured indigestion, chronic coughs, colds, bronchitis and incipient consumption, given strength and vigor to the aged, replaced weakness with strength and made the sick well.
"It is for this reason that I offer to give back the money every time if it fails to give satisfaction."—Frank D. Hall, Druggist.

Breaking a Wishbone.
The divining rod is a feature in all early mythology, especially so among the Hindus. As the forked branch of a tree it indicated in various parts of Europe, Asia and Africa where treasures were hidden or where water might be readily found. From the forked branch of a tree it was but a step to the forked clavicule of a bird, and this bone was soon invested with the power of securing the gratification of the wishes of those who in breaking it retained the forked part, for it was the fork that was possessed of mystic power.

WEDNESDAY'S RACES
Afforded Splendid Entertainment for Good Sized Crowd at Idlewild Park--Thursday Ladies' Day--Meeting Ends Friday.

The third day of the race meeting now in progress at the Old Fort half mile track, was Ladies' Day, and the fact that the fair sex were admitted free, was responsible for a large attendance of the beauty and fashion of the city. The crowd generally was also larger than on the two previous days, while the races provided an afternoon of rare and exciting sport.
The card Wednesday furnished excellent racing, the two principal events that were decided being the 2:27 trot, 2:21 trot and a running race, the pace being postponed until today.
The bettors seemed to warm up a bit and the pools sold readily while the book also had a big play. The favorites for the harness events were winners and although the prices against them in the books were short, the public backed them heavily and many quit the day winner, those who make a habit of playing the field having a bad afternoon.
The races for Friday are the free-for-all pacing, 2:18 class trot, and a mile run, two in three heats.

The first race called Wednesday afternoon, after the postponed 2:14 trot had been won by Redwood, was the 2:27 trot with five starters. For this race Jessie Clay was favorite and brought $10 in the pools, while $8 was given for the field. For the first heat the books installed Jessie Clay an odds on choice at 2 to 3, while 4 and 6 to 2 could be had for the others. The field was sent away on the second score. Jessie Clay immediately going to the front. The heat was a procession, the favorite winning pulled up, while the others were strung out back to the distance flag, Sphinx just getting inside.
Seven horses faced the issue in the 2:21 trot, which proved to be a great betting event. For the race Harry J. sold at $10 in the pools, while speculators paid $12 and $14 for tickets calling for the field against him. In the books Harry J. was odds on at 2 to 3, while as good as 8 to 1 could be had for some of the others. A few fancied John Swisher's entry, Interurban, and placed a few bets with the books at 4 to 1. The first heat furnished a fair start, but interest centered only in the race between Don and Foxy Oliver, the two going out from the wire and racing alone, the former winning by a good length, in easy style.
For the second heat of the 2:27 trot the winner of the first heat Jessie Clay opened in the books at the short price of 3 to 10, and even at those odds considerable money went in on the Worline mare, so much in fact that the pencil rubbed the odds until she was 1 to 10, a price that was prohibitive to those who wished to speculate. After a good start, Jessie Clay went to a bad break at the first turn, and Nelson Van Atta took J. H. Swisher's mare Bonita out in front. She was never headed, and won the heat easily. Jessie Clay made up considerable ground after her first break and looked to be a contender up until the three-quarters, when she broke again and had to be nearly stopped before she regained her stride, finishing fourth.

Before the horses were sent away in the second heat of the 2:21 trot, Don sold in the pools for $5, while field brought $8. For the heat Don was an even money favorite, while the price on Harry J. had lengthened from odds on to 3 to 2. Interurban was about 6 to 1 to win.
While rounding the first turn the sulky drawn by Don was seen to go down, a wheel being smashed by Wood Girl, who was trailing him. Both drivers were called into the stand and Mr. Bethel, driver of Don, exonerated King from all blame for carelessness, and on account of the unavoidable accident, Don was placed and allowed to contest in the next heats. The heat resulted in a close finish between Harry J., Foxy Oliver and Lady Restive, the former winning in a pretty drive.
At the opening of the third heat of the 2:27 trot Jessie Clay brought $10 in the pools to $6 for the field. Of course there was a very short price against Jessie Clay in the books for the heat. The heat resulted in an easy victory for Jessie Clay, who jogged home five lengths in front of Black Star and Bonita, who fought it out for place. Black Star getting the decision by a nose.

Harry J., winner of the second heat of the 2:21 trot, was at such short price in the book that very few wanted to bet on him for the third heat, and the bets that went in were mostly on Foxy Oliver and Don to beat the favorite. Woodgirl went out at the half and looked to be a winner, but Harry J., driven in masterly fashion by Jamison, caught and passed her in the stretch, winning the heat by a length.
Harry J. had won two heats of the 2:21 trot in such impressive style that he appeared a cinch for the fourth heat, and the butters were going to take no chances with him, and he opened at 3 to 5, and as soon as the butters began making a few bets, the odds receded to 3 to 10, the price at the wire when they got the word. Harry J. proved that the price about him was right as he took the fourth heat and race easily.
Foxy Oliver, the fast three year old, owned by W. B. Hall, proprietor of Hall's Breeding and Training stable of Mansfield, started in the 2:27 trot Wednesday, and in each heat was a contender. In the first he was taken out by his driver, Joseph Hall, a skillful young reinsman, and with Don set a hot pace until the stretch was reached, when Don came with a rush and nosed out Oliver, in fast time. In the second heat the three year old son of Bert Oliver 2:08 3-4, was well driven and forced the favorite Harry J. to a fierce drive to win. In the third heat Hall drove Foxy Oliver a fast half, taking Woodgirl to the post in 1:07, but in this heat he was placed third. The performance of this colt in Wednesday's race against aged horses, was really a remarkable performance, and next year he will undoubtedly be one of the best racers in Ohio.

WIT BUBBLES IN TOASTS.
Some Humorous Sentiments Fittingly Expressed at Banquets.
A publisher once gave the following: "Woman, the fairest work in all creation. The edition is large, and no man should be without a copy."
"This is fairly seconded by a youth who, giving his distant sweetheart, said, "Delectable dear, so sweet that honey would blush in her presence and treacle stand appalled."
Further, in regard to the fair sex, we have: "Woman, she needs no eulogy; she speaks for herself." "Woman, the bitter half of man."
In regard to matrimony some bachelor once gave, "Marriage, the gate through which the happy lover leaves his enchanted ground and returns to earth."
At the marriage of a deaf and dumb couple some wit wished them "unspeakable bliss."
At a supper given to a writer of comedies a wag said: "The writer's very good health. May he live to be as old as his jokes."
From a law critic: "The bench and the bar. If it were not for the bar there would be little use for the bench."
A celebrated statesman, while dining with a duchess on her eightieth birthday, in proposing her health said: "May you live, my lady duchess, until you begin to grow ugly."
"I thank you, sir," she said, "and may you long continue your taste for antiquities."—London Tit-Bits.

Drinking and Smoking.
"The prevalent idea that drinking and smoking are companion vices is altogether wrong," said a physician who has made a special study of dipsomania. "I find, on the contrary, that the habitual drunkard is not abnormally addicted to the use of tobacco. He may use the weed as a lesser stimulant when not strongly under the influence of alcohol, but when the drink gets firmly entrenched in his system he cares nothing for tobacco, for then it has lost its force and its influence upon his nerves. Of course I mean in extreme cases."
"On the other hand, it is a rather curious fact that in the case of the moderate drinker, who also smokes, the cutting off of his supply of tobacco will increase his appetite for alcoholic beverages, and while at first the liquor will not affect him nearly so much as when he is smoking, in the end it will do him up. Consequently it is safe to assume that the man who always used liquor and tobacco in moderation will, if he gives up tobacco, take more strongly to liquor. In fact, this is no assumption; it has been demonstrated on numerous occasions."—Philadelphia Record.

His Education Wasn't Complete.
No more courteous judge ever presided at a trial than the venerable former justice of the New York court of common pleas, Charles P. Daly. The story is still told among our New York lawyers how on one occasion a young attorney, while trying a case, indulged in considerable vituperation of his opponent's witnesses, finally going so far as to answer the court very sharply when requested to modify his language.
Knowing that Judge Daly was somewhat of a stickler for the dignity of the judiciary, lawyers and court attendants gazed at the offending attorney in amazement.
There was a long interval of silence. Finally the judge leaned over the bench and said, with an ironical smile: "My young friend, before you are as old as I am you will have learned that it is about as well to read Chesterfield as Blackstone."—Success.

Moslem Women's Freedom.
There has been a vast amount of pity wasted upon the Moslem woman. It may surprise even the woman suffragist to learn that the laws of Mohammed conferred upon women a greater degree of legal protection than any code of laws since the middle Roman law. Only the more recent liberties and protection granted to married women by the laws of divorce and the exclusive property rights now in force in the United States can be properly compared to those in Turkey. Under the Moslem laws the provision for securing to the wife the free and uncontrolled possession of her property is minutely stipulated in the marriage contract. A suitable sum is also arranged for her maintenance in accordance with her husband's rank.—Century.

Various Sources of Silk.
Silkworms are not the sole source of the production of silk. It is also obtained from several vegetable substances, but of an inferior and less durable description. Excellent colored silk is obtained from the prepared and finer fibers of the bamboo, which is much in demand for clothing in tropical countries from its lightness and porosity. Another form of silk is obtained from the pods of the silk cotton tree, of which there are several varieties in existence, the material obtained from them being known as vegetable silk.

Went Her One Better.
"I never saw you in such a becoming hat my dear. Did you get it ready made?"
"I was just thinking how unusually pretty yours looks. Did you make it yourself?"—Brooklyn Life.
How It Was Done.
"I thought Miss Pampleigh figured on marrying Jack."
"So she did, but another girl with more money outfigured her."—Smart Set.

Alcohol in Kidney Cures is Absurd.
EDWARD BACON CURED OF KIDNEY DISEASE OF THE WORST KIND.

Edward A. Bacon of Greenwich village, Mass., P. O. Box 49, writes Aug 3, 1903: "I can truly say that Kidney-Wort Tablets have done me more good than all the doctor's medicine I have taken. I noticed a decided change for the better before I had taken the first bottle of the Tablets. I was suffering from kidney disease of the worst kind, but Kidney-Wort Tablets have stopped all inflammation and entirely cured me."

If your doctor's prescription does not fit you case, or if you have been foolish enough to take liquid remedies that invariably contain dangerous alcohol—stop all other medicine and Kidney-Wort Tablets will cure you. It has cured thousands who were making no headway under their physician's care, because their doctor's prescription did not exactly hit their case.
Has your urine, your back, your general health, led you to wonder if your kidneys are sound? Write Dr. Pettigill, Burlington, Vermont. Give him your symptoms, he will advise you free.

DANGER IN SODA SIPHONS.
They May Explode and Cause Injury to Those Who May Be Near.
Do you know that the siphon bottle ordinarily used for iced, soda water and other effervescent drinks is usually charged with a pressure of from 120 to 160 pounds to the square inch? The danger likely to result from an explosion of one of these little household articles is by no means inconsiderable, and yet the average person handles a siphon as though it were the most harmless thing in the world.
There are two or three things to remember in handling siphons: Never keep your siphons near the range, for the unusual heat is more likely than anything else to cause an explosion. Don't subject the bottle to any sudden change of temperature whatever. For instance, if you keep your siphons in the ice box—and that is the best and safest place for them—don't grasp the glass part of the bottle with your warm hand, for the sudden change of temperature is apt to cause an explosion. The best way to carry a siphon at all times is by the metal top at the head of the bottle. It is needless to say the greatest care should be taken not to drop a siphon, for an explosion is the inevitable result. When empty, the siphon is, of course, quite harmless.
That these bottles are considered a great source of danger is evidenced by the fact that the courts inevitably hold the bottlers strictly liable for all damages resulting from the explosion of one of them if even the slightest defect in the manufacture of the bottle can be shown.—Washington Times.

This Horse Knew.
A doctor was returning home from visiting a patient late one night in company with a clergyman, when the horse stopped short at one of the most dangerous grade crossings within the city's limits. Absorbed in lively conversation with his clerical friend and seeing no gate down, he mechanically touched the horse with the whip and urged it by his voice to go forward. But the spirited animal for once would not respond and instead of obeying stepped briskly aside and turned his head as far as possible from the trail which just then whizzed by at the rate of forty miles an hour.
It was a close call for the occupants of the carriage, who sat breathless through the moments of terrible suspense, but the horse maintained its attitude of a half circle until the danger had passed. It seems the gate-keeper was asleep at his post and had neglected his duty, but the delicate ears of the horse had detected the sound of the coming train.—Boston Transcript.

FR. WEHRLE BANQUETED THE MEN WHO HAVE HELPED HIM

Improve the Parish at Bellaire—About Forty Guests Were Present at the Feast.

The Wheeling Register contains the following regarding a banquet and reception tendered the Rev. Father Joseph Wehrle at the new parish residence of St. John's Catholic church, in Bellaire, on Sunday evening, which will be read with interest by his many friends here, he being a brother of William W. Wehrle and August Wehrle, the stove manufacturers of this city: Sunday evening one of the most notable receptions and banquets in the history of Bellaire was given at the new parish residence of St. John's Catholic church. The event was in honor of the various committees of the church, the members of the press, bankers and others, who had by their aid encouraged Father Wehrle in establishing a parish excelling all others in eastern Ohio. These committees which were organized in 1896, have labored earnestly in placing the church in this enviable position and last night they surveyed a part of their endeavors. Through their untiring efforts in the past seven years, the members have collected over $100,000 and purchased property, the location of which is the most desirable in Bellaire. The committee surveyed, with pride the achievements that have been wrought in that period, wherein they have worked, and as a token of his appreciation Father Wehrle was profuse in his thanks for their aid and expressed himself as well pleased. The new parish house recently re-fitted through, was viewed from top to bottom by the guests, and all were struck by its quiet elegance and comfort-giving equipment. The reception apartments had been attractively decorated for the occasion and added charm to the surroundings. The banquet was held in the banquet hall of the home. Here mirth and social chat held sway for full three hours during which time a number of delectable courses were served. Covers were laid for forty guests. John Moser of Newark, O., presided as toastmaster, when coffee and cigars had been reached. After a few brief remarks he called on the host, Frank McNamar, John McCormick, Thomas Shelly, William Brailly and others, who responded, extemporaneously. About forty guests were present.

HAIL DISPENSERS USED BY ITALIANS Rome, Oct. 21—Great damage is done in the country districts of Italy by sudden hail storms; one of the best means for the prevention of these destroyers is the system of enormous detonators, resembling cannons, the firing of which often results in the dispersion of the hail cloud. Numerous cannons are to be seen in the neighborhood of Rome, among the hills. The most gigantic ever built is at Vicenza, which has just been set up by Cavaliere Patronio Veronese, a most enthusiastic agriculturist. It is 40 feet high and weighs 4,400 pounds; the explosion chamber measures 10 feet in height, and the funnel 31 feet. It is charged with acetylene gas and when fired can be heard eight miles away. One kilogram of carburet is used for each explosion, and the cost of each firing is only four cents. Hage's Cornal of Cod Liver Oil is a thin, pleasant-tasting, pleasant-smelling fluid. It is not an emulsion, and does not contain any grease or fishiness. Hage's Cornal is readily accepted by the most delicate stomach.

Saves Two From Death.

"Our little daughter had an almost fatal attack of whooping cough and bronchitis," writes Mrs. W. K. Haviland, of Armonk, N. Y., "but when all other remedies failed, we saved her life with Dr. King's New Discovery. Our niece, who had consumption in an advanced stage, also used this wonderful medicine and today she is perfectly well." RATHER DEMOCRATIC

Here is a good little story of the gracious King Oscar, of Sweden. He is famous as an amateur botanist and one day while botanizing near the palace he met Gustave Bonnier, the famous botanist, engaged in the same occupation. The king was not recognized and after the two had worked and talked together for some hours he asked Bonnier to take luncheon with him. The botanist did not recognize his host until he arrived at the palace, when he endeavored to excuse himself. "I am sorry you mind," replied the king. "Unfortunately I am king of this country, and have nowhere else to entertain my friends." And then Bonnier again accepted.
